Ask a Manager Alison Green, 2018-05-01 'I'm a HUGE fan of Alison Green's Ask a Manager column. This book is even better' Robert Sutton, author of The No Asshole Rule and The Asshole Survival Guide 'Ask A Manager is the book I wish I'd had in my desk drawer when I was starting out (or even, let's be honest, fifteen years in)' - Sarah Knight, New York Times bestselling author of *The Life-Changing Magic of Not Giving a F*ck* A witty, practical guide to navigating 200 difficult professional conversations Ten years as a workplace advice columnist has taught Alison Green that people avoid awkward conversations in the office because they don't know what to say. Thankfully, Alison does. In this incredibly helpful book, she takes on the tough discussions you may need to have during your career. You'll learn what to say when: · colleagues push their work on you - then take credit for it · you accidentally trash-talk someone in an email and hit 'reply all' · you're being micromanaged - or not being managed at all · your boss seems unhappy with your work · you got too drunk at the Christmas party With sharp, sage advice and candid letters from real-life readers, Ask a Manager will help you successfully navigate the stormy seas of office life.

How to Write a CV If You Have Little Or No Work Experience Vlad Mackevic, 2017-11-23 How to Write a CV if You Have Little or No Work Experience. A guide for students and recent graduates on writing effective CVs, covering letters and application forms. Vlad Mackevic, #1 best-selling Amazon Kindle author (College and University section) So, you are applying for a job. Perhaps the employer has asked for a CV or perhaps you need to fill in an application form. You are a student, or a fresh graduate with not too much serious experience and you are not quite sure how to show your potential employer that you're brilliant. This book is what you need. It teaches you to write brilliant, effective, impact-making CVs. The book answers several very important questions: What skills are almost all employers looking for? How do you present yourself professionally? How can you extract valuable information from the little work experience you've got? How do you present your work experience so that it looks impressive? What should you do if you've never had a paid job? What is more important - the duties or the achievements? How do you write covering letters and application forms that will get you interviews? What is more, this book gives you advice on how to get work experience and what counts as work experience. Extract from the book (published with the author's permission) The purpose of your CV is to get you an interview, not a job. This means that you need to impress your potential employers and make them interested. Please also remember that you will need to write a CV in response to a job advertisement. These usually contain two documents: the job description with a list of tasks and the person specification with a list of skills and qualities that an ideal candidate for that job should have. The contents of your CV will depend on the contents of these two documents. So, here are the main elements that CVs are made of, from the top to the bottom: 1. Your Name and Surname at the top, in a larger font. DO NOT write 'Curriculum Vitae' or 'CV'. Your potential employer knows that they are reading a CV. There is no need to tell them that. 2. Your contact details: your address and postcode, telephone number and email address. 3. Your Personal Profile (optional). I will write more about it in Chapter 5: Personal Profile. 4. Education. Here is your first chance to shine and stand out. See more in Chapter 6: Education and How to Talk about It. 5. Skills. In a skills-based CV, the Skills section precedes the Work Experience section and is very large. In an experience-based CV, the Skills section is much smaller: it only contains 'hard skills' such as languages, numeracy and IT and comes after the Work Experience section. There are many skills that you can present in your CV. The main ones are: Communication (spoken and written); this includes writing and presentation skills Commercial awareness (knowing how businesses operate) Customer Service Teamwork (all about co-operation and helping others) Planning and Organising Motivation and Working on your own initiative Information Technology and Computer Literacy (including internet-based research skills) Languages Leadership - this one deserves a separate discussion and I will address this skill in Chapter 8. In short, a leader is not just a manager. A leader is someone who is able to spot a problem before anyone else does, and takes the necessary steps to solve it. Willingness to Learn When you mention your skills, they should be accompanied by specific examples and evidence demonstrating that you, indeed, possess them. 6. Work Experience. Chapter 7 will explain why you don't even need a job to build a great CV because it is enough to be socially active at university.

The Professor Is In Karen Kelsky, 2015-08-04 The definitive career guide for grad students, adjuncts, post-docs and anyone else eager to get tenure or turn their Ph.D. into their ideal job Each year tens of thousands of students will, after years of hard work and enormous amounts of money, earn their Ph.D. And each year only a small percentage of them will land a job that justifies and rewards their investment. For every comfortably tenured professor or well-paid former academic, there are countless underpaid and overworked adjuncts, and many more who simply give up in frustration. Those who do make it share an important asset that separates them from the pack: they have a plan. They understand exactly what they need to do to set themselves up for success. They know what really moves the needle in academic job searches, how to avoid the all-too-common mistakes that sink so many of their peers, and how to decide when to point their Ph.D. toward other, non-academic options. Karen Kelsky has made it her mission to help readers join the select few who get the most out of their Ph.D. As a former tenured professor and department head who oversaw numerous academic job searches, she knows from experience exactly what gets an academic applicant a job. And as the creator of the popular and widely respected advice site The Professor is In, she has helped countless Ph.D.'s turn themselves into stronger applicants and land their dream careers. Now, for the first time ever, Karen has poured all her best advice into a single handy guide that addresses the most important issues facing any Ph.D., including: -When, where, and what to publish -Writing a foolproof grant application - Cultivating references and crafting the perfect CV -Acing the job talk and campus interview -Avoiding the adjunct trap - Making the leap to nonacademic work, when the time is right The Professor Is In addresses all of these issues, and many more.

Creating Your First Ever CV In Seven Easy Steps Julia Dolowicz,2012-11-06 This friendly and accessible book coaches you through the process of writing your first ever CV. You may be in school and about to apply for a part time job; you may be wanting to approach a company for work experience; or you may have been lucky enough to get a job after school without compiling a CV and you want to progress and move on so you need to start from scratch. Creating a first CV, with no employment history, can be a daunting task. But just because you haven't had a work/employment history, doesn't mean you have no skills. However, if you're starting out and you want to stand out, you have to be clear about those skills and make them count. This book breaks down the process of writing your CV into seven steps, short activities that will subsequently be used to build upon each other. It will help you identify those skills - which we all have and bring them to life. Gather it - collect the material for your principal CV and profile. Develop it - start to play with the information you have collected and apply it to two real or dream jobs you would like to apply for. Evidence it - learn how to demonstrate where and how you have ability and proficiency. Shape it - look at the structure, format, style and layout of your CV. Build it - bring together all the information you have collected, expanded, and evidenced so far. Polish it - you will have gathered more information than you ever thought you would, so here you will add and subtract and reshape. Complete it - this final step encourages you to review, refine and rejig your CV so that it reads well and flows. There is also a section on writing cover letters, completing an application form and preparing for interview.

Writing a Cv That Stands Out...! Andrew Underwood,2017-11-17 Recruiters may spend as little as 15 seconds when first appraising a CV; in the case of teenagers a survey in 'The Times' states this is 8.8 seconds. So gaining a quick and immediate impact is essential. This guide will show you how. Included are CV templates and advice on how to apply our CV writing techniques at all levels and across all disciplines. For those looking for entry level positions we cover: apprenticeship CV's; school leaver / recent student CV's; and graduate CV's. Also we show you how to write a CV if you are looking for a change of career and transferable skill based functional CV's. Highly practical in nature, this is a guide you will keep in a safe place 'just in case'. Andrew, the author, has literally written hundreds of CV's for people and currently works with organisations making redundancies as an outplacement consultant, often writing / rewriting up to eight CV's in a day. In addition he is highly regarded by organisations working on government contracts supporting the unemployed and has trained the trainers working with unemployed individuals for major training providers on DWP (Department of Work and Pensions) contracts, passing on his skills on both CV writing and job hunting, the CV style which he promotes also adopted by two major contract holders and used with over thousands of individuals in the UK. Quotes from individuals Andrew has worked with testify to his CV writing skill Just wanted to say thank you for your help, my new CV format got me an interview... which led to a new job; I am contacting you because I want to thank you for the great job did you on my C.V. I am very happy to inform you that I am currently working at xxx I am so happy to back to work and it is all because of you; I just wanted to say Thank you for your help with the CV, with it I managed to get the job I wanted out in Dubai; I completely altered my CV and received 3 interviews and 3 job offers. As stated earlier - this is a guide you will want to keep in a safe place 'just in case' and for those really struggling with writing a CV, the guide also shows you how to access more direct CV writing support from Andrew himself. Andrew has also covered details on completing application forms within the guide - something he knows a lot about through working with individuals applying to government, University, Third Sector roles - Andrew also working with recent graduates on applications for graduate entry schemes and training contracts .
